Minister, in 1887 live Feitled of Restinestion By the Senits.

Washinstorio, April 18.2—The text of the extradition treaty which was signed by Secretary Ilayard and Mr. De Struva, the Russian minister in Washington in 1807, but which falled of ratification by the senats, principally because of the strong oposition raised to Article 8, defining political offenses, apparently with a view of clicting expressions of public opinion. The same alleged text was published in some of the New York papers six years ago, and it is believed to be accurate.

Article 8 is the article which returned to the number of the senate alleged text was published in some of the New York papers six years ago, and it is believed to be accurate.

Article 8 is the article which returned to the number of the family, as well as an attempt to committed previously other than that for which the extradition was granted in or shall the surrender of any person be demanded for an offense committed previously other than that for which the extradition was granted in or shall the surrender of any person be demanded for an offense committed previously other than that for which the extradition was granted in or shall the surrender of any person be demanded for an offense committed previously other than that for which the extradition was granted in or shall the surrender of any person be demanded for an offense committed the said the surrender of any person be demanded for an offense of the family, as well as an attempt character.

It is pointed out that the modifica-tions of article 3, as adopted in the tresty which now awaits the exchange tion as to political offenses against the sowerign or chief magistrate, but make no concessions in favor of Russia which are not reciprocated in favor of the United States. The actual text of this part of the tresty as it now stands is as follows:

Article 2 of the treaty of 1887 con-tains this damittom of the crime of forgery.

"The crime of forgery, by which is understone the interance of forged papers, and also the counterfelting of papers, and also the counterfelting of pablic sourceign or povernmental acts," of ponents of the treaty contend that inder this definition persons would be extradited for using false paseports or passports issued in an assumed name, which is said to be a very common prac-tice on the part of persons who believe their true names would excibe suspicion of the Russian anthorities.
